Bryan Says the Coming National Convention Will Be the Greatest In the History of the Big Democratic Party

FACTIONS EMBITTERED

Centre of the Storm Is McAdoo, Standing With Probably a Majority of the Candidates And Flanked By Resolute Leaders, He Is Still Battling

United Press Headquarters, Waldorf Astoria, New York, June 23.—With William G. McAdoo and his supporters attacking the "intrenched interests of New York in their effort to preserve the Democratic presidential nomination for the west; with the fight against the Ku Klux Klan growing in intensity and with all delegates on hand, opposing forces were forming today for what William Jennings Bryan says "will be the greatest national convention in the history of the Democratic party."

Convention week opens with clouded political skies from which verbal bolts of increasing bitterness are being hurled among the rival factions. The center of the storm is McAdoo, who standing with probably a majority of the candidates, and flanked by resolute leaders of the south and west, is battling to hold its forces in line against the combined assaults of big eastern delegations and the press

And, as this struggle rages toward the day when balloting will determine who is to lead the party at the polls this year, another bitter battle goes on as anti-Klan leaders increase their demand for a platform plank specifically denouncing that organization.

Ed. Moore, of Ohio, who has come out with the strongest proposed plank on the subject that has been offered yet, claims a poll of the delegations shows a majority—approximately 500 votes—are ready to be registered for a direct anti-Klan plank.

It is certain the resolutions committee will write a plank stronger than that of the Republican convention at Cleveland, but it will not name the Klan It is when this report is made to the convention that the real test on the issue will come. Moore and others threaten to carry the fight to the floor—and if they do so, old Madison Square Garden will ring with one of the most dramatic debates ever recorded in convention annals.

For the moment, however, the interest of delegates is primarily directed at the fierce fight McAdoo is making to maintain his position as leader in the convention. Beside him in his fight stands the veteran Bryan, who arrived in New York yesterday. McAdoos fight is the sort of fight Bryan likes. And, probably through Bryan's counsel, McAdoo has personally made his issue along lines old and familiar to the commoner—the issue of the free and open west against "invisible government of the east; against New York, the citadel of privilege, sinister, unscrupulous, mercenary and sordid."

In launching his open attack along this line during an address to some 300 delegates gathered in his headquarters last night, McAdoo cut the strings completely that might have been pulled on the leaders here.

The New York Morning World, which has led in the attack on him, appeared this morning with an editorial announcing itself four-square for the nomination of Gov. Al Smith.

In the minds of some of McAdoo's leaders, the stand McAdoo has taken goes beyond the mere personalities of the respective candidates whose personal views, as a matter of fact, have been almost lost sight of in the different struggles raging around issues. The nomination this year, in the opinion of such men as Gov. William S. Sweet, of Colorado, will determine the party's future for good and all. "It is truly the party's last

Says Rallies Free From Any Politics

Patchogue, L. I., June 23. — The Very Rev. Michael J. Ripple, C. P. P. G., National Director of the Holy Name societies, in addressing the Brooklyn Diocesan Union Rally of the society here yesterday, insisted that Holy Name rallies are a demonstration of practical faith and patriotism and utterly devoid of any political significance.

"You are assembled here in these [illegible] your fellow citizens far and wide to the nobility of your purpose and the glory of your program," Fr. Ripple said. "I have heard men say, yes men even in high places, that these great rallies and assemblages of Holy Name men, focus the attention of the enemies of the church and gives color to the charge of bigotry and ignorance, that the Catholic church is trying to capture the government or in some other way endeavoring to accumulate great political power. But, gentlemen, you, yourselves, know and your fellow citizens not of the faith who have gazed upon you in solemn procession today cannot help but be impressed, with the idea that you have gathered here solely to honor the name of Christ and to accentuate the fact that America is a Christian nation dedicated to the idea of God and religion and exemplifying the confession of St. Peter who proclaimed enthusiastically to the Saviour, 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.' Your fellow citizens cannot but be edified; the force of your good example cannot but elevate their souls and enkindle in them the inspiration with the ideals of your society have set your own soul on fire.

"The Holy Name society represents a deeply religious body of men dedicated to law and order; pledged to obey and observe the laws of God and as a consequence pledged to uphold and respect the laws of their country" The national director continued, "Obedient servants of God's Ten Commandments, they cannot be traitors to the laws of justice, liberty and fraternity, which bind them together as American citizens in the most glorious Republic on the face of God's earth."

Earth exactly like that used in making the bomb was found in the house occupied by Kolicas and Barkas.

QUEEN OF THE BOOTLEGGERS IS BEING SOUGHT

Philadelphia, June 23.— A woman known as "Blanche"—Queen of Philadelphia's bootleggers — was being sought by police today for questioning in the hope that she might throw some light on the murder of "Dapper Tommy" Boyle, gangster, gunman and bandit.

Boyle's body, riddled with bullets, was found Sunday in "Wayfarers cemetery" at Gallows Lane in South Philadelphia. A bunch of weeds had been placed in the man's hands as a "funeral bouquet."

Authorities today said Boyle was a victim of the vengeful code of the underworld—the ninth victim in less than two years. A year ago, the body of "Dutch" McLaron, a gangster, was found within 200 yards of the spot where Boyle's body was placed by his murderers.

"Blanche," also known as "the woman in black," can tell whether Boyle was shot and killed in a bootlegger-highjacker fight or in a gang feud, police believe.

Less than two months ago "Dapper Tommy" was released in $10,000 bail at Atlantic City, where he had been arrested on a charge of being implicated in a $20,000 jewel robbery.

THE PRESIDENT'S POINT.

In his address to the graduates of Howard University President Coolidge expressed the view that the purpose of Providence in the enslavement of African negroes in America was to bring them under the influence of Christianity. Commenting the New York Times critically remarks: "The President expanded this curious idea at length, but it is doubtful if his hearers were moved to any deep feelings of gratitude in behalf either of themselves or of their slave ancestors. As a civilizing devise, [illegible] it is rather obvious that here as elsewhere, all though the aged, the negro was enslaved to get work out of him, not to improve his religious of social status."

Of course Southern planters who invested in slaves wanted "to get work out of them," and of course the New England slave traders who wrought them from Africa wanted to get money out of the sale of them, and both objects were attained. But all that is beside what presumably was the President's point. The far-reaching purposes of Providence not the object of slave owners or planters was the subject. Whether American negroes of today are better morally than their savage ancestors who roamed the African bush may be open to debate, but it is certain that through removal to America the race was civilized, or at least lifted higher in the scale of civilization. It is also certain that American slavery even with all that may be justly said against it, was an industrial school that gradually transformed untutored savages into more or less efficient workers with habits of restraint and perseverance which enabled them, when set free, to become self-supporting men in a civilization far above the ken of their ancestors. That by itself was a substantial gain.

BEATTY LOSES TO THE STOGIES YESTERDAY IN PRETTY PITCHERS' BATTLE

Holding the Sackville Stogies to four hits at Mather yesterday before a good-sized crowd, availed Pitcher Harry Beatty of the Charleroi team naught yesterday, due to the fact that his wild throw to catch a man napping at first, and Consonery's broad peg to head a runner at third, were directly responsible for three of the Stogies' five runs. The score at the end of the ninth inning should have stood at 2-1, with perfect support gave the Stogies one of their tallies in the initial time of the Stogies' turn at the bat by calling a batsman safe at first and allowing a runner to score. This man was out by a foot, in the opinion of fair-minded spectators. His decision on balls and strikes were also erratic generally mitigating against the interests of the Charleroi team.

On the other hand while Beatty pitched superbly before a crowd that was about evenly divided in sentiment and should have won the fact that the Charleroi players failed to bunch hits, was one of the primeval causes of their defeat. With the bases jammed on several occasions, from the first inning to the close of the game, the needed bingle to score did not come until the seventh inning. At this time Consonery got a base on balls, stole second and scored easily, when Lou Phillips, who was the only player on either side to get two hits, drove the sphere to deep left for the longest and most beautiful bingle of the contest.

During the game there was more or less quarreling and disputation among the spectators, causing considerable excitement and pep. The rays of old Sol were pretty strong, and the players suffered much from the heat. The playing field, specially the diamond, is sloping in nature, but the work of the Charleroi infield was superb, aside from Beatty's wild heave. On the other hand the Stogies made five errors—winning with the umpire and the breaks of the game. The score:

Fay's Speed And Accuracy A Barrier To Conley's Strength

From a Louisville, Ky., paper, we glean that the primeval cause of Harry Fay's recent victory over Billy Conley of Spokane, Washington, was the fact of Fay's speed and accuracy they overcoming the strength of Conley.

The Louisville exchange goes on to say that "Conley, champion of the west coast, who heretofore has never failed to floor his man in a bout, was decisively defeated by Fay, and, incidentally, failed to land a blow hard enough to hurt the Charleroi boy. It was Harry's fight all through. His speed and superior boxing ability more than offset the bull-like attack of the Westerner."

The clipping goes on to say:

Conley attempted to sweep Fay from his path by rushing him to the ropes time after time, but Harry soon solved this style of attack and jolted his opponent with stiff lefts to the face. Conley's best work was done on the infighting.

Harry continued jabbing during the next two rounds. In the fifth Conley swung a sweeping blow that missed and the force of his effort carried both fighters clear across the ring to the ropes. Fay retaliated with a hard right to the jaw.

As the eleventh opened Fay slammed a wicked right to the solar plexus. Conley clinched and essayed an uppercut which missed its mark. Harry came back with a right and left to the head.

Conley seemed slightly weary in the final round. He clung to Fay continuously and made little effort to assume an offensive role. Fay landed a hard right and left to the jaw early in the round. He complained to Hart that Conley had bitten him on the shoulder during a clinch.

Washington Refused Crown

In 1782 an army officer wrote to George Washington suggesting that he become king, as the experiment of democracy seemed to be a failure. Washington immediately replied that he was extremely surprised by such a suggestion and advised the writer of the letter to banish such a thought from his mind if he had any regard for his country, himself and posterity, or respect for Washington.

First Gas Light

The first gas light in the United States was shown in a side show in 1802, by Benjamin Henry, at a hay-market gardens in Richmond Va. The admission was fifty cents to view the so-called "inflammable air" and was thought to be magic by the thousands who viewed it.

INEFFECTIVE WORK BY PIRATE PITCHERS CAUSES LOSS OF GAME

Just how badly the nerves of the Buccaneers may have been shattered as a result of their experience in Saturday night's railroad wreck is a matter of uessworw, but it is probable the Reds emerged from the smashup in a steadier frame of mind, for McKechnie's fellows were flogged 9 to 4 in yesterday's Redland game and the outcome was a tumble out of fourth place which the Pirates proudly occupied prior to the opening engagement.

The Pirate pitchers did not fare very well at the hands of their foemen, who delivered their blows in great clusters.

They shelled Southpaw Emil Yde off the knoll early in the second frame an then proceeded to try with the curves of Johnny Morrison who likewise was jolted severely in the fourth and compelled to retire in favor of Arnold Stone. Before Stone could et the inning finished the ninth and last Cincinnati marker was driven across.

who believes that if the west is disappointed the farmers will provide the basis for a permanent third party.

According to the best possible estimates, McAdoo today could command at least 500 delegates at the peak of his strength—a majority of the convention. He has selected a line of attack in the "home of the enemy" that appeals to many of the western delegates. Up to the present, the opposition, headed by the New York leaders and George Brennan of Illinois, have had the upper hand, Tom Taggart of Indiana, however, continues aloof from that organized opposition for reasons easily understandible in view of McAdoo's past aid to both Taggart and Senator Samuel M Ralston, who is Taggart's "first and second choice" for the nomination.

TREAT FOR THE THEATRE'S PATRONS

With "The Enchanted Cottage," Richard Barthelmess' newest production under the direction of John S. Robertson, Mr. Barthelmess adds another type of motion picture to the long and varied list which he has already made.

In "he Envhanted Cottage," which will be shown at the Majestic tomorrow only, Mr. Barthelmess plays the role of a broken down war veteran, a youth who has lost all interest in life and who is physically ruined as the result of the war. This role not only gives the star an opportunity to add another character portrait to his gallery, but "The Enchanted Cottage," with its musical comedy and its subtle theme that love makes all things beautiful, promises to be the sort of picture which has a general appeal o all types of movie fans.

IMPORTANT NOTES ON CANNING

In making preserves, marmalades, conserves, jams and fruit butters, a larger amount of sugar is used than in canning. The sugar is cooked into the fruit or condensed with the fruit-juice and acts as a natural preservative against yeasts and bacteria. These foods must still be protected from molds, and this is most satisfactorily accomplished by sealing in clean hot jars.

The following estimates may be used as a general guide in determining the amount of food required for canning fruit:

1 bu. peaches ..... 25 qts.
1 bu. pears ..... 30 qts.
1 bu. plums ..... 28 qts.
1 bu. red raspberries 24 qts.
1 bu. cherries ..... 20 qts.

Cherries that are not desirable for canning may make good juice for use as a beverage or in pudding sauces and gelatin desserts.

PRECIOUS preserves spoiled! Vegetables you had depended on for the whole winter ruined!

Some rubbers blew out, others bulged, a dozen dried up and made the way easy for an army of bacteria to creep in and spoil all your work.

All because your jar rubbers did not do the two important things every jar rubber must do if it is to make a perfect, air-tight seal!

Stretch and "set" are the two things every jar rubber must do. First it must stretch just enough for you to slip it easily over the top of the jar. Too much stretch robs it of the ability to snap back into place—to "set"—the moment it is released.

It is this ability to first stretch and then "set," firmly gripping the neck of the jar, that prevents bulging and blowing out.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers already tested for stretch and "set"

The largest rubber organization in the world—the United States Rubber Company—makes "U. S." Jar Rubbers.

From their plantations in Sumatra comes the high grade rubber used in "U.S." Jar Rubbers. In their great laboratories where so many rubber problems have been solved, experts worked out the formula for these safer jar rubbers. Before they leave the factory "U. S." Jar Rubbers are subjected to rigid tests to determine their fitness to resist all the powerful forces which play upon them in actual use.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers come to you already tested for stretch and "set"—tested to give you a permanent seal—a seal which "stays put"! Ask for them.
